

I am strongly in favor of protecting New Jersey's more stringent Do Not Call law/program. I find the solicitations of vendors intrusive. When I am ill, I have to pick up the phone to contend with telemarketers. When I come home after a long day at work, my attempts at relaxing with friends and family are interrupted by telemarketers. Anticipating a call from the doctor or hospital on my personal or family's health, I get numerous telemarketer calls. Enough is enough. I am an intelligent, informed consumer and if I want a product, I get the information I need; I do not sit and wait for someone to call and sell me what I need. On my front door, I have a No Solicitation sign; for my telephone, I have New Jersey's Do Not Call list.
